I failed to find any traces of Malphigian tubules in Mycetophila. The Nervous System is composed of nine ganglia. Dufour says they are distributed as follows: one in head, two in thorax, and six in abdomen. In the niycetid I examined this was certainly not the case. There are certainly tivo cerebral ganglia, two thoracic, and only five in the abdomen. This is the normal number for the Fungicola. Whether Ceroplatus is abnormal in having ten, or whether Dufour miscalculated the cerebral ganglia I have not been able to make out, as I have not had any live Ceroplati to examine. The Respiratory System.--There are eight pairs of stigmata, two thoracic and six abdominal, from which proceed delicate trachea; I have been unable to make out their distribution. The? sexual organs are composed of two long and rugose glandular ovaries, opening into a long neck...
